In the first place, the Journal is a very interesting and valuable record of the life and times of the author, and of the country in which he lived. It is a very good example of the kind of writing which was common in the eighteenth century, and is well worth reading for the sake of the information which it contains.

The first thing I did was to go to the bank and see what the exchange was for the day. I found it was very low, and I was obliged to sell my gold at a great loss.
 I then went to the office and saw the manager. He told me that the company was in a very bad way, and that he was obliged to sell the shares at a great loss. I was very disappointed, and I felt that I had been deceived. I then went to the bank and saw the cashier. He told me that the the first of the year 1822, the British government declared that it would support the claims of the Prince of Wales to the throne of Spain, and that it would also support the claims of the Duke of Calabria to the throne of Naples. This
