the first part of the year 1781, the British army, under the command of General Cornwallis, was defeated at the Battle of the Clouds. This was a significant event in the American Revolutionary War, as it led to the evacuation of the British from the city of Yorktown. The British then sailed to the coast and were eventually forced to surrender to the American and French forces. This marked the end of the war and the beginning of American independence.

The second part of the year 1781, the British army, under the command of General Cornwallis, was defeated at the Battle of the Clouds.
